ANAESTHETICS AND EMERGENCIES IN SMALL ANIMAL PRACTICE

Khula

Anaesthetics and emergency care are crucial aspects of veterinary practice, and mastering these skills can significantly enhance your confidence and satisfaction at work. Not only will these competencies increase your value as a vital member of the veterinary team, but they also ensure that a high standard of patient care is maintained. This course will deepen your understanding of key anaesthetic practices, patient triage, and emergency response techniques in a clinical setting. Join us to enhance your competencies and confidently support your veterinary team in delivering critical care for small animal patients.

Our courses are designed to help technicians tailor their expertise and skills to a small animal setting, in alignment with SAVC guidelines.

*Please note that these modules also form part of our 12-module Premium AHT Mastering Companion Animal Care and 6-module Core AHT Introduction to Companion Animal Care courses. To avoid repetition, this short course is not recommended if you have already completed either of those courses.
